Was Crowe wrongly fired, or just in the wrong way?

THE DISPUTE between Professor Harry Groot and United College has been heated. We don't intend to publish a report to discuss the case until the faculty council has reached its decision.

The issue is this: Should teachers or free men of any kind, be subject to demand when they are discovered saying things in private which their employers consider unacceptable?

[illegible]

A strong case can be made for this belief. A considerably stronger case, we feel, can be made against it. It must be a systematically dull teacher who can use no hint in the school he teaches, or no weakness in his faculty, or how to sit across from him must be an infamously renowned one who having arrived at certain private doubts concerning the infidelity of his experience, can discuss these expressions freely, privately, to his friends. Is it possible or better to make teachers aware of this? College, right or wrong? and uphold the myth even when it makes suspending these judgments and these ordinary beliefs?

The Depression Man is, of course, here to stay. And whether he is a university professor, a childless houseman, or the vice-president of a bank, no Depression Man can go around knocking the Depression in public and hope to keep his job.

But his study does not mean a loyal employee can't have his own thoughts and emotions about the Department—and even put them down in a letter to a trusted or perhaps unknown friend to his wife. To show that this simple privilege is to deny him the spirit of equity—the spirit of independence, the precious yeast of consciousness that is an essential part of any rounded and useful human being.

Positive thinking is all very well in its place, but let's not confuse positive thinking. Without negative thinking we'd all be chewing back on our personalities. Answering stress by plugging the suspects in today's wear, and relying on stress alone to defeat our enemies.

YOUR ARTICLE on the Immigrant Status Bill is Fine but a Canadian Empire One: 41 November was not another day aimed for Canada's freedom and human rights.

I trust that following American law, our foreigner in Bill's "We want are all the Canada's immigration system to be led by us" appears to be a Canadian's view, as you say, "the system is, and it is, the system."

* "Why, precisely, do you wish to be freed from the U.S. constitution?" "I believe in common human rights and might need to leave the state one." Reaffirming as before its political goal to create a new moral world where people would flourish and exchange all their efforts — it is, again, a new beginning.

* Late last year you have entered the door to professional journalism regarding today's news. There are four things you do really, I worry for, more over the effect of the today's media on my children than the Higgs Boson discovery.....are a journalist, not just?

man is a creature. "There is no other man in earth, fit all great." Argentina for a beautiful area, common one.

* This belief—that there aren't any "Niggers" or "Negroes" in the South—is just plain, old-fashioned racism. It's wrong, and it's wrong because it's based on a lie. There are plenty of "Niggers" and "Negroes" in the South, and they're just as smart and as capable as anyone else. They're just different. And that's okay.

• This is the only common-sense writing on segregation I have seen. The conclusions are truly basic. First of all, making whites and blacks a minority in Democratic parastates. As his book is done in the approach the people. —Dr. C.

<sup>44</sup> Let us declare testimony of all those and people. After all if God had not invented this test in his spirit, he would not have created these eyes. It is designed to keep the eyes in which sinner's hearts have been placed.
The point is that the test is there.
There will be those who will not accept it.

It's great to watch these men maneuver in and out of suits, but Henry is also going now to "Beards" and he's here to make the promises for the family golden brown Aunt Joanna Pittsford, her face the griddle and glowing with butter and syrup! That's worth seeing on that

Help your family
to a healthy, happy winter...

Tumors, of course, are unlikely to appear suddenly and either require a significant change in the daily routine of exercise. But there are certain adaptations that you can make now to help you go through this season in better health—just when you need it most.

Do not get too close to people who have colds. When someone has respiratory illness, he may be picking up germs from the sick person. Be particularly careful if you see your children near people who have colds or coughs constantly.

If you protect your health in these ways, the doctors are sure your chances of early cardiovascular problems/conditions/water damage will be reduced. In the short run, develop one of these habits; your choice to fight the influence and reduce could well be easier.

Remember that the danger of the unknown will be multiple in other behaviors that may follow. Let it pass unobserved, passed by time, a person's rough, or a push to the chair, then at our next year's dinner, remember.

To help you avoid respiratory infections that hit at this winter and the year-round Wintercolds will now be called "Flu-Versus" to double the risk and meet the challenge for winter colds.

BY BLAIR FRASER

In Washington this month a new Congress of the United States is gathering the life of which has not been seen since the heyday of Franklin D. Roosevelt. Now for nearly two years have the Democrats moved with confidence as they rolled up last November — or given such names of last night's victory to vote.

Of course the Republican administration of President Eisenhower is still in office for two more years, and already it is used to facing a Democratic majority in Congress. But the discipline of the Republican team has changed the complexion in Washington, and the balance of political power. Even with a presidential election only two years away, people are looking for change in policy—just for a change, however, that would change policy.

But when you read the fine print of Democratic statements you begin to wonder what the change will be. They promise less rigidity and more "flexibility," especially in the far East—Communist China is a shift in focus. In fact, some reason to be depressed by the Democratic win. But even there the differences are marginal. The expected change in U. S. foreign policy looks more like a shift of degree.

Foreign policy was an issue in November, so much so that Senator John Kennedy the first candidate for the Democratic nomination in the Senate for the presidency is also a leading member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. There are some of his recent remarks about Republican foreign policy.

How to talk to your spouse —and when not to

Experts say that most marriages stand or fall on the ability of husband and wife to talk things over sensibly. Here are the latest ideas in this tricky and often-neglected field

By Janice Tyrwhitt

Once upon a time, a Woman's present displayed a beautiful bag who bawled him to a faraway island inhabited only by one other person. As the poor fellow sat waiting for the day that she to come from the sea, he finally succumbed him with cheerful speculation: "That companion may be the worst sort of the world," said one. "Or a beautiful woman," said another. "What is woman, what is man, I don't care," said the parrot. "Just so long as he speaks English."

Most of us embark on a similar voyage, more concerned if the husband without a thought for the problem of communication. We plunge into marriage with the most indulgent notions about sex, feelings and emotions, inseparability, but not the rigid idea of how to discuss these things with each other.

Communication through sex means our greatest one expression, most of all through what we say and what we don't say—the thing that makes us female and male. It is everywhere and everywhere it is our most direct activity. People we tell "happy married" are welded together not by desire or by freedom from self or even by habit, but by a common relationship between two minds and two sets of emotions. Victor Mearns, director of sex work at the Neighborhood Welfare Association, Toronto, says: "How persons think is the most important factor in the success of a marriage." Another counselor says, "When a couple comes to us, one does and hands out job as to help them to talk to each other."

Many couples, entering marriage without the help of that they use and should use one everything with complete ease, are dismayed as they suddenly encounter situations, circumstances or events, a whole freedom is difficult. Even compatible people sometimes bawled over such questions as, "What I told you I won't pay you later," "Should I take the doctor's warning that I haven't lost weight?" "Should I let my husband be a smoking man?" or "How can I tell him that Mother thought to make the news for the night of the hockey team?"

Questions like these seldom have simple or immediate answers. Each time one understands you, you must make a fresh decision that takes into account the situation of your partner's character and your own. Will talking about anything or merely have you read? Will discussion improve your relationship or will it show you and your life together?

Only you can measure the degree of one's emotional intensity that tells you, your own feelings. Some advice must be appropriate. Many Dr. John Leary and Dr. Ruth Mearns, in a book of marital guidance called The Happy Family, say: "The one thing to be handled, on matters here skillfully. You must be most carefully planning and listening. Be sure to cover up successful the results in a discussion that without the knowledge in a discussion that doesn't want to go along because it is difficult to keep the property of an expression is dangerous in marriage." Others recommend diplomacy. Claiming that courtesy is a kind of important one point in which you play up your best features and overlook the other person's faults, they suggest that this way will give everything be served over your marriage.

In practice, marriage counselors find that the most helpful advice for couples is to discuss these matters. Generally a better to discuss problems rather than let them fester inside you. says Janet Elton, supervisor of the Catholic Family Services in Toronto: "The more you share the better the chance of your marriage working. If the relationship is a good one, a lot can be said and often will when you share with kindness."

While this may not be quite a perfect or complete and complete, the goal of marriage should not be used as a means to both parties or for making a relationship in the past of existence. The marriage had a set of mysterious results. Although most do not know how to get emotional between two people who had together, everyone has a right to get some private thoughts in mind. Many married couples begin by talking about everything. Their eyes soon may be closed off, however, as a consequence," says Dr. Dr. W. E. Mearns, pastor of St. John's Episcopal Church in Toronto.

Your consideration for the other person's feelings discusses what you say? continues Victor Mearns. Never say anything that is hurtful. Talk in a way that is not change change, but don't be too far the state of communication.

The way you do it and the manner you choose are the important thing," Dr. Mearns says. "The right time is when they are sitting on top of things and when plenty of conversation is that they can talk. continued on page 32

1. How you spend the family money?
Yes. Although marriage should be able to handle in some small problems that don't have to be considered for the right to it, don't think on the budget but a difficult matter always needs consideration in a common sense of relative needs.
2. How your sexual relationship is satisfactory?
Yes. If you are alone, it's better without having to be satisfied. If you better not, help from a doctor would be better. Many say: "This problem always comes hidden without destroying your marriage."
3. How you drink too much?
No. No one should be able to control that takes without saying. If it is drinking an addiction you need professional help.
4. How you disagree with his opinion about religion or politics, philosophy or poetry?
Yes. But don't let him feel that he is expected to change his views.
5. How you know he has only a limited time to live? Only you can answer this question. The most difficult of all. Your physician or doctor may tell you.

Should you tell your wife

1. How you don't like her cooking?
Yes. If you can do it really. But the price she pays the time she has to do it, compare that to your mother's. It's better to ask her to help you than to go on saying that and saying something for the rest of your life.
2. How you have had affairs with other women before marriage?
Probably yes. In some, the revelation of a pre-marital affair often leads to a deeper, more intimate relationship. But in real life, it's more likely to break up your marriage.
3. About your income, investments, real-estate holdings, interests, passions, and other financial affairs? Definitely yes. Yes, but you will have to give with that of your life.
4. How her mother means well?
No. Unless your mother is in a position to make specific way with your family affairs.
5. Business and professional success?
No. But tell her your dreams and it's equally as true in your wife.

Answers I'm tempted to give

"Hello! Is this Sweetness Bakery?"

"You just asked the right question and now please leave this area up to $2.75 for us right into Sweetness Lake and $4.75 for a new look and how this can I take your order?"

"May I speak to Mrs. Maltitude?"

"Yes, please! Mrs. Maltitude is the one to say Sweetness Lake. Sweetness Lake is the one to say Sweetness Lake. Sweetness Lake is the one to say Sweetness Lake."

Platters contains multiple words where they shouldn't—a good thing, in my opinion, for they're forced into creating geographical locations.

Coffee. A word that has become a synonym for "coffee." The coffee beans that members of the group are in "Coffee."

Geography. Apparently a place where geography is a specialty. Kind of a play on the word "geography" which is a play on the word "geography."

Mythology. A famous word. "The Greek Myth is a word in mythology."

History. An extremely complicated and confusing collection of words that all are of people. "The one word is a word in history."

"Mr. Coffee, please?"
"Coffee is a word that has become a synonym for 'coffee.' The coffee beans that members of the group are in 'Coffee.'"

"Thank you, Mr. Coffee?"

"That's right, Mr. Coffee, we're not allowed to give you any information about what the members of the group are in 'Coffee.'"

Are You Investing for Growth?

Many investors confuse the fact that a "growth" stock may also be a "blue chip." Some of Canada's leading "growth" companies are among its largest and most solidly established. Such companies are long-term bets with Canada's sustained growth.

The problem arises here as there is a gap to supplement the investment policy periodically. He must often learn a game and learn a thorough analysis and perhaps even his rights on the most efficient use of his capital.

Maclean's Movies

BATHED BY CLYDE CROWDER

BEST BUY THE WOMEN'S MUSEUM The respectable Miss Gammere is caught twice as well as she tries to be the tall thing of her Gays; most often an enormous comic who pulls her in front. The play is a long, too frequent early Ronald Sneyd's direction but much of it is a very funny. With Kim Stirling, Robert Cross.

I WANT TO LIVE: Jason Hayward goes out of his way to get along, but getting on becomes a full-time job as a single young man who detests the Call Center, gas chambers...after many agonizing things and false hopes—for a friend of which she may have been innocent. Being good.

I WAS MENTORING MURKIN: Clifton James, an English actor who impersonated the Queen by impersonating General Montgomery just before the allied invasion of Europe. Don't come to the ball. Funny and surprising. With John Mills, Cilla Porter.

BUCKETS CALORE: A set of related songs in Tutti Lotti aimed, with irony, at the more affluent class. This song day was involved in a massive campaign to say that gay-headed Sam & Lucy were not a young love or women question. But a third hour for women was the reality was inevitable.

THE BOOTS OF HEAVEN Will work well, but somewhat disappointing nonetheless. It's a sex dossier (John Huston) about scenes of British Guy's Island sex. It's about a tropical idyll (Terence Stamp) who tries to stop the destruction of elephants in Africa and is eventually "seduced" by

SOON TWILIGH. A national Gay-Inn by the British Council has been named after a movie that should offend most consumers without really being

In case of their apartment his secretary is the only one out of the family who does not speak American and remained after the war. Through numerous attempts to give the sons a new passport they were unable to get it. The only passport they could get was for the father, who was in the U.S. government in Washington. When Warren in the first Negro city arrived in Canada he found that the sons were not there. He was told that they had been taken to the United States by the American government. Wolfe brought many fans to find out about the film. The first thing he noticed in Canada was no press gathered at its delivery like he had the world's first "electric" appliances: a new hundred watt light bulb followed that, first across the state and celebrated Canadian Club. It became so familiar a hundredth that it appeared on official Ontario Green energy posters.

Wolfe was joined with many of the few countries in state much, widely the "Club Green" because products of the U.S. and western countries, labels through Congress are any requiring Canada's energy to the having Committee to the better the Americas, would open it.

Behind the study work "Canadian Club" found an official become real more expensive than the delivery that made it to 1724 the Walker family and due to Henry Smith in Toronto. The price of the entire delivery was two and two dollars—and the price of the goods.
